Course Description

This course introduces you to the tools and concepts central to the sociological study of religion. We ask what religion is, how it is present and influential in public and private life, and how and where people from different religious traditions interact in the contemporary United States. Specific attention is devoted to people’s religious practices, religious communities, and the identities people develop through their religious traditions. Questions about religious pluralism, diversity and multi-religious citizenship are central to the conversations we will have throughout the course. By the end of the semester you will be able to:

- Provide substantive and functional definitions of religion and spirituality and explain how these approaches have been influenced by scholars in the past one hundred years.
- Analyze how religion and spirituality are present in American public life, how this is changing, and how issues related to diversity and pluralism have been addressed in specific examples.
- Describe how religion and spirituality influence people over the life course and how that influence varies across individuals.
- Consider the place of humanists, atheists and agnostics in the American religious context.
- Compare and contrast how religion and spirituality are addressed in secular institutions such as on university campuses, in airports, seaports, and healthcare organizations.
- Present and defend your own approach to religious literacy.

Unlike courses in history or religious studies that focus on one religious tradition, you will learn a little bit about several religious traditions in this course. If you are looking to better understand the history of Buddhism, Judaism, Christianity or another religious tradition, this may not be the course for you. While we will certainly pay attention to history and religious teachings in this course, our focus as sociologists will be on the ways individuals live their religions in day-to-day life. Sometimes these experiences may seem to be in contrast to texts or religious leaders, an issue we will discuss throughout the course. Similarly, some of what we cover in this course may challenge what you know of your own or others’ religious traditions. We ask you to be patient, to reserve judgment, and to remember the commitment Brandeis makes in its mission statement to be “a center of open inquiry and teaching.”

This course is built around course readings, ongoing discussion, occasional films and guest speakers, and several writing assignments that ask you to bring theoretical ideas into conversation with religion as it is lived by the people around you. You are also required to make a field visit to two religious gatherings on campus or in the greater Boston area. We encourage you to visit gatherings and learn about religious tradition or spaces that are new to you and to see this class as an invitation and an important step in conversations about spirituality and religion in all of our lives. This course counts towards the major in Sociology and Minor in Religious Studies. It is a Writing Intensive (wi) course and fulfills the School of Social Science Distribution Requirement (ss).

Course Readings

The following required books are available in the bookstore.

These books are also on reserve in the library. All other required course readings are available through Latte except for those listed with web addresses that can be located that way.

Course Requirements

1. Attendance is required. Please be on time out of respect for us and your classmates. Your class attendance counts as 5 points towards your final grade. If you miss zero or one class, you will receive 5 points. If you miss 2 classes, you will receive 4 points. If you miss 3 classes, you will receive 3 points. If you miss 4 classes, you will receive 2 points. If you miss 5 classes, you will receive 1 point. If you miss more than 5 classes, you will receive 0 points. The only absences that will not influence your grade are those for religious holidays that you email us about at least one week in advance. If you are not feeling well, please email me to let me know you are ill. Please make sure to sign the attendance sheet that will be passed around in class. Signing in for someone else is a violation of University policies on academic integrity that we take very seriously.
2. Reading is required. All course readings must be done for Monday of each week unless otherwise noted in the syllabus. To prepare for class and be in conversation with us about what you are reading, response questions are listed on the syllabus and on Latte after many of the readings. You must respond to one of these questions eight times over the course of the semester. Each response should be one page long (single spaced) and written in a google doc. Please share your google doc with your discussion section leader to turn in these response papers and work from the same google doc through the whole semester. This allows us to write comments back to you and you to respond when you do your next response. You can pick which eight questions you respond to during the semester but your response is due by 6am on the day class will meet. Each response is worth 2 points towards your final grade (16 points total).

3. Class Participation is central to this class, and we ask that you participate fully in class, your small group and section. If you are not comfortable speaking in class, please participate by coming to office hours. You are allowed to have computers and cell phones in class only if you are using them to take notes or look at readings. We will reduce your participation grade when we see you reading Facebook, surfing the web, sending text messages, etc. Class participation will count as nine points toward your final grade. Feel free to check with us about your participation grade at any point in the semester.

4. Written Assignments: There are four written assignments in this class:

   a. Two field reports that describe your visits to spiritual or religious gatherings or sites. This assignment is being distributed with this syllabus. The first one is due on January 31 and the second is due on April 18. Each is worth ten points. One of these can be to an on-campus gathering and one must be to an off-campus gathering.

   b. The first 5-7 page (doubled spaced) paper assignment asks you to analyze prayers delivered in a state or federal government setting in the United States in light of class readings and conversation about civil religion and spiritual governance. This assignment will be distributed on February 4 and due on February 28. It is worth 15 points.

   c. The second 5-7 page (double spaced) paper asks you to gather some information from an interview or social media about the development of someone’s spiritual or religious identity and describe that development in the context of class readings. This assignment will be distributed on March 11 and due on April 4. It is worth 15 points.

   d. There will also be a take home final exam distributed on April 29 and due on May 7. It is worth 20 points.

This is a writing intensive class which means we will be focusing on writing as much as content in these assignments. We are happy to read drafts of papers and / or strongly encourage you to take them to the Writing Center before you submit them. We expect you to use proper citations and reference all sources you use in each assignment. We will discuss when and how to cite sources in detail. If you have any questions at any point, please do not hesitate to raise them. You are expected to be familiar with and to follow the University’s policies on academic integrity (see http://www.brandeis.edu/studentlife/sdje/ai/).

Papers are due through Latte at the beginning of class on the due date. Papers turned in after this are late. You will lose one full letter grade for each 24 hours after the due date that the assignment is turned in (i.e. if you would have received an B on a progress report but you turned it in one day late, you will receive a C etc.).

5. Final Grades will be based on your class attendance (5 points), class participation (9 points), reading responses in google docs (16 points), field report (10 points each), Paper 1 (15 points), Paper 2 (15 points) final exam (20 points). Final grades will be calculated using the following point distribution:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Grade</th>

There are numerous written assignments in this class so that you can improve over the course of the semester. If you are struggling or are not happy with how you are doing, please see us sooner rather than later so we can work together to help you improve.

All written assignments must be completed to receive a passing grade in this class

6. University Policy on Academic Accommodations: If you are a student who has academic accommodations because of a documented disability, please contact Wendy and give her a copy of your letter of accommodation in the first two weeks of the semester. If you have questions about documenting a disability, please contact Beth Rodgers-Kay in the Undergraduate Academic Affairs Office (x63470, brodgers@brandeis.edu). Accommodations cannot be granted retroactively.

7. University Policy on Academic Integrity: You are expected to be familiar with and to follow the University’s policies on academic integrity (see http://www.brandeis.edu/studentlife/sdc/ai/). We will refer any suspected instances of alleged dishonesty to the Office of Student Development and Conduct. Instances of academic dishonesty may result in sanctions including but not limited to being required to attend educational programs and receiving a failing grade for the course.
